2025 CORPORATE COUNSEL SYMPOSIUM

THE INTERCONTINENTAL CHICAGO MAGNIFICENT MILE
SEPTEMBER 14-16, 2025 | CHICAGO, IL

FDCC

DEFENSE LAWYERS. DEFENSE LEADERS.

Are you ready to dive into the current of legal innovation and professional growth? Do you want to explore cutting-edge solutions to today's most complex corporate challenges? Does the thought of deep-dish pizza, world-class architecture, and vibrant city energy inspire you?

Then join us in Chicago at the 2025 Corporate Counsel Symposium, September 14-16, 2025.

This year, we'll Be in the Flow in the Windy City. Drawing from the Federation's wealth of expertise, we'll hear from professionals at the forefront of in-house and outside legal practice. Sessions will cover making the business case for AI usage and practical uses for in-house counsel, trade secret protection strategies, emerging environmental litigation risks, corporate governance in today's climate, and practical approaches to legal operations whether you're leading a team of one or one hundred. Building on the success of last year's format, we'll once again feature dynamic panel discussions to spark lively conversation and meaningful idea exchange. We'll also bring back our signature FedTalks-concise, inspiring presentations designed to leave a lasting impact.

Beyond the informative sessions, you'll find abundant opportunities to connect with colleagues, forge new relationships, and experience the camaraderie that makes the FDCC an unparalleled professional community. Whatever the origin, one thing is certain: at the 2025 Corporate Counsel Symposium, you'll find yourself in the flow of ideas, solutions, and connections that will energize your practice and prepare you to navigate the currents of today's complex legal landscape with confidence and skill.

GC Potpourri: Ask the GCs: What Your Outside Counsel Should Know (But Might Be Afraid to Ask)

Ever wish you could sit down with a group of general counsel and ask them what they really want from their outside litigation teams? What keeps them up at night? How do they measure value? What makes them return your calls - or not?

In this fast-paced, Reddit-style "Ask Me Anything" session, a panel of seasoned in-house legal leaders will answer your questions live and unfiltered. No scripts. No slides. Just honest, open dialogue about what corporate counsel need, expect, and value most from their outside litigation partners—and how outside counsel can better support them in today's complex legal environment.

This session isn't just for outside counsel. Corporate counsel should attend to hear the perspectives of their litigation partners, reflect on their own communication strategies, and walk away with ideas for setting clearer expectations and building more effective, aligned relationships. This two-way exchange will help strengthen collaboration, transparency, and results across the board.

The Pros and Cons of ADR, including International Arbitration

When a dispute arises, would you rather litigate in an unfamiliar and possibly unfriendly locale before an unknown judge or jury—or select an experienced third party with subject matter expertise to decide your case? This panel of experienced in-house and outside counsel will break down the pros and cons of arbitration, when it's better suited for certain disputes, the facts needed to enforce an arbitration clause, how to fight claims of waiver or vacatur, and whether arbitration offers better protection than litigation, jury waivers, or limitations of liability provisions. We'll cover how to structure arbitration clauses thoughtfully, navigate enforcement and non-signatory issues, and manage proceedings in a way that preserves arbitration's core advantages. We'll also share practical strategies—like limited discovery, fact witness statements, use of dispositive motions, closing on “paper,” and creative case presentation techniques—to help you balance efficiency and advocacy while keeping your company's goals front and center.

5:00 PM - 6:00 PM: Legal Operations: Getting It Done Whether You're an Army of One or One Hundred

Are you a team of one—responsible for everything from corporate governance and regulatory compliance to crisis response after a catastrophic event? Or are you leading a 25-person in-house legal department navigating nationwide contract management, international expansion, litigation risk, and claims oversight?

No matter the size of your team or the scope of your operations, today's in-house counsel are expected to be legal advisors, business strategists, risk managers, and problem-solvers—all at once. This dynamic panel dives into the real-world legal and operational challenges corporate counsel face across industries and borders.

We'll tackle contract and knowledge management best practices, how to effectively manage and collaborate with outside counsel, and strategies for improving communication and alignment with business stakeholders. Learn how leading legal departments are using KPIs, feedback loops, and innovative tools to measure success and drive value—internally and externally.

Come hear how experienced in-house leaders are rising to the challenge and walk away with practical tips and new perspectives to strengthen your legal operations, no matter what your legal department looks like.

10:15 AM – 11:15 AM: Secrets to Success: How to Best Prepare, Protect, and Enforce DTSA Claims

Learn how to best prepare – well in advance – to effectively pursue and preserve enforceable claims under The Defend Trade Secrets Act (DTSA). Given the increased limitation on the enforceability of non-competition covenants, the DTSA is now, more than ever, a critical tool to use in order to protect the Company's most critical information and proprietary assets. However, perfecting a claim under the DTSA can be challenging, especially if the company has not invested in identifying, organizing, updating, housing and protecting its actual trade secrets.
